Swansea and The Revolutionary War

Cheryl Bogle, President
Swansea Historical Society

Swansea and the Revolutionary War

The American Revolution began because many colonists believed the British government was violating their rights. After the costly French and Indian War, Britain imposed new taxes and laws—such as the Stamp Act and the Tea Act—to raise revenue from the colonies, even though the colonists had no representatives in Parliament. Resentment grew over what they saw as "taxation without representation," along with increasing British control over colonial affairs. Tensions eventually erupted into armed conflict at the Battles of Lexington and Concord in April 1775, beginning the Revolutionary War.

Swansea and the Revolutionary War

In 1778, British forces raided what was then part of Freetown (today's Fall River) during the Battle of Fall River. They burned homes, mills, and boats while trying to disrupt colonial military supplies. Farther south, the Battle of Rhode Island took place in nearby Rhode Island in 1778, and towns in southeastern Massachusetts, including Swansea, Rehoboth, and Taunton, supplied militia and support for the war effort.

Swansea and the Revolutionary War

Bristol, December ii, A. D. 1776.
To Capt. Thomas Allin :

These are to impower you to Proceed into the towns of Warren, Swanzey, and Rehoboth, and to purchase as many Blankets as you Can agree for and if you cannot Purchase any you must take to the amount of one Hundred, not taking more than one or two from any one family.

Make strict search as they must be had, for the army are now suffering for the same and give your receipt for the number taken to the owner of the same. And for your so doing this shall be your sufficient Warrant.

- William Bradford, Deputy General the state of Rhode Island

Swansea and the Revolutionary War

There was never any direct military activity in here in Swansea.

The selectmen made provisions for the residents of the town in case the war did come our way, likely stockpiling muskets, powder, and shot and stashing away salted meat, grain and dried goods in a central location.

Swansea and the Revolutionary War

The selectmen also hired sentries to protect our coastline and all of Swansea borders. They believed that if we were attacked it was going to happen by way of the water.

Swansea and the Revolutionary War

During the war (and later in the Civil War), each man was given the option that if he didn't want to fight, he could pay another man to take his place and serve under his name. This was called hiring a substitute. The substitute would muster in, and the drafted man was released from his obligation. The price varied enormously depending on how desperate the need was and how far into the war you were.

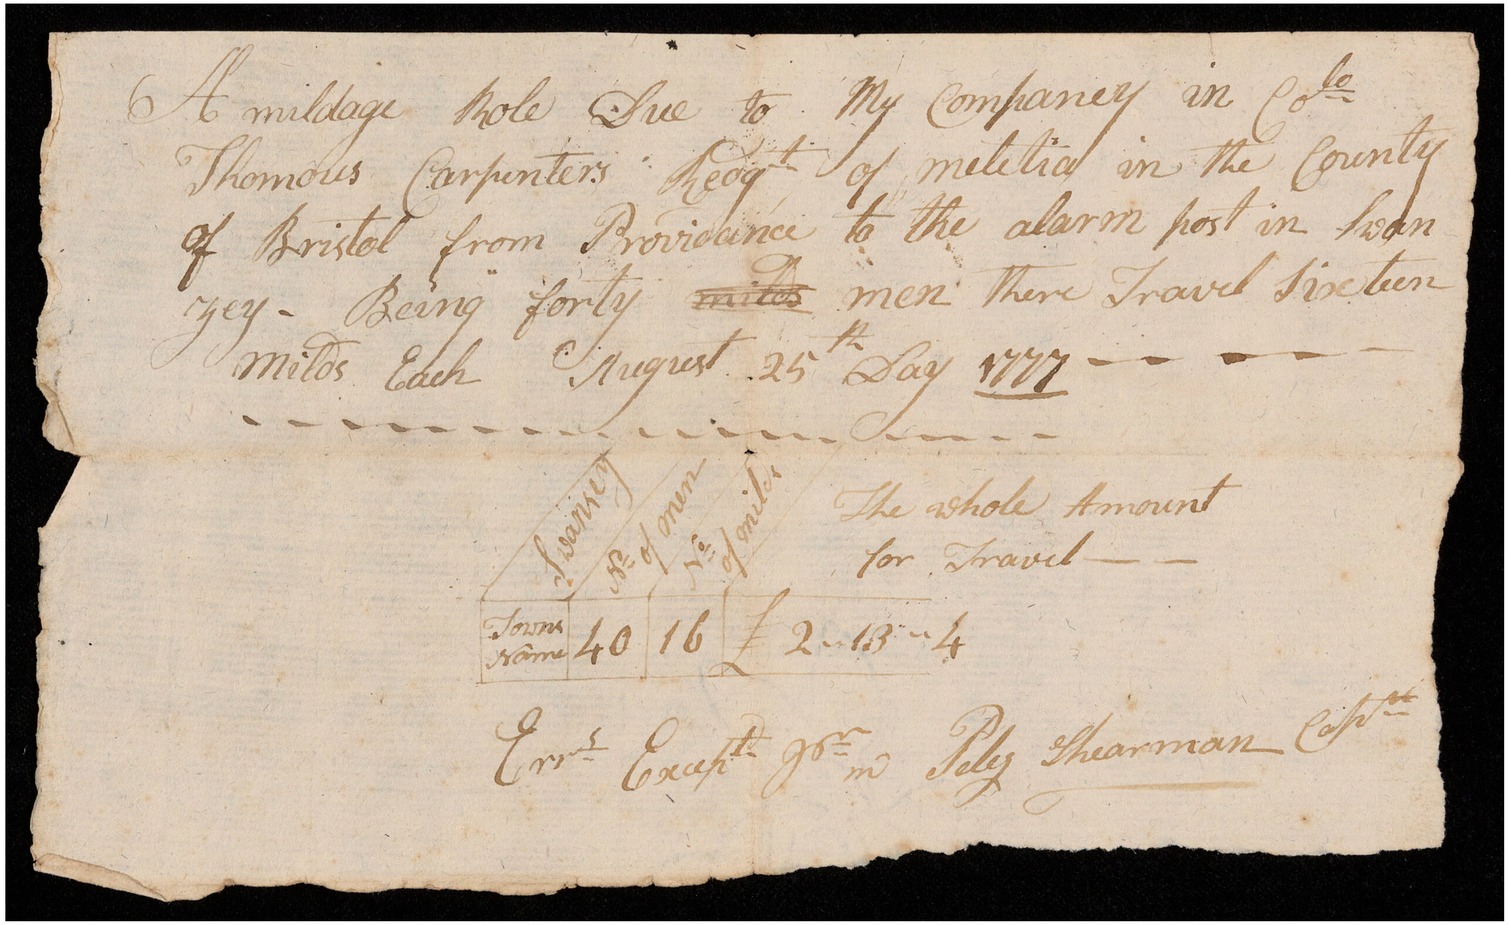

Colonel Peleg Shearman

- Colonel Shearman was the grandfather of Elizabeth Richmond Case Stevens.

"Of three militia captains of this town Peleg Sherman [sic], afterwards Colonel, was a leading factor in the conduct of Swansea's relation to the great struggle. He was often moderator of town meetings and at the head of important committees on military affairs. He was in active service along our shore during the British occupation of Rhode Island, e.g, at Slade's Ferry from January 6 to June 5, 1777, and at Bristol later in the same year. He also served the government as commissary for the supply of stores to the troops. His home, where at one time troops were quartered, was at Shewamet Neck, at what is now known as the Henry H. Mason place, where he died Nov. 20, 1811, aged sixty-four."

~ History of Swansea Massachusetts 1667 - 1917 by Otis Onley Wright, page 86.

Swansea and the Revolutionary War

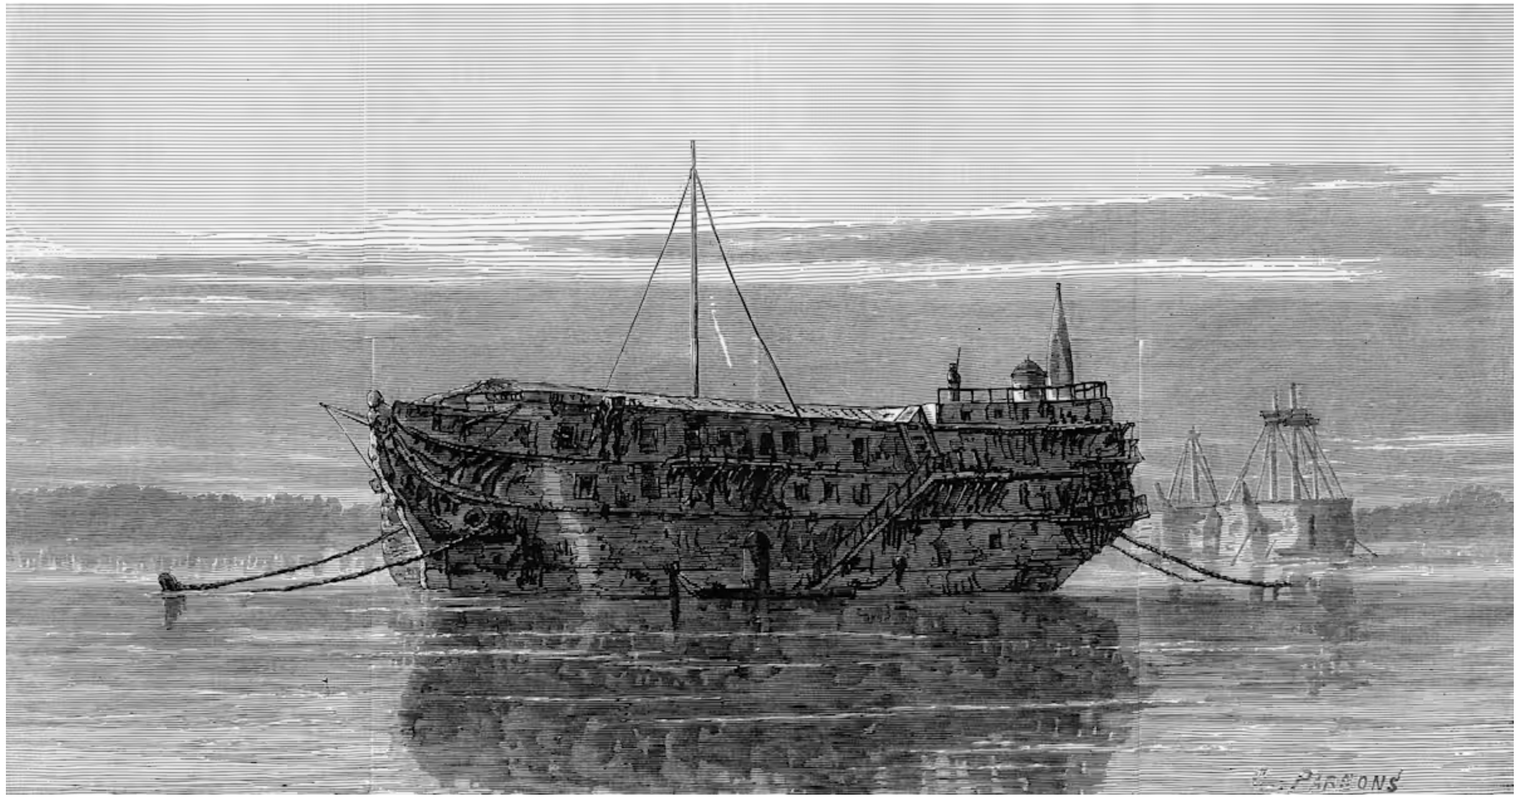

Several town's men did not fight or hire a substitute, but instead went into hiding over the course of the years the war took place. They hid out in basements, barns and abandoned buildings. Some may have signed onto a merchant vessel or simply moved to a neighboring town or colony.

Prison Ships

American Prisoners of the Revolution: 8000 Men

The British used the ships at Wallabout Bay, later the site of the Brooklyn Navy Yard, for naval prisoners on this side of the Atlantic. The prisoners included men captured on American privateers, merchant ships, French, Spanish, and Dutch vessels. After April 1780, The Jersey was the receiving ship where names were entered into records.

HMS Jersey

Prison Ships

Many Swansea soldiers were taken prisoner on the British Prison Ships – especially on the HMS Jersey. Sadly, they did not return alive.

This is taken from the American Merchant Marine at War website (http://usmm.org/revolution.html):

"About 55,000 American seamen served aboard the privateers. When captured by the British Navy, they were given a choice: join the British Navy or prison. The conditions of captivity aboard the prison ships, mostly abandoned ships moored in New York harbor, were inhuman. The most infamous of these was the HMS Jersey. About 11,000 privateers died of disease and malnutrition, their bodies dumped onto the mud flats of Wallabout Bay, where Brooklyn Navy Yard now stands.

“These Mariners lost their lives in the founding of our Nation and were a major factor in the winning of the Revolution."

Prison Ships

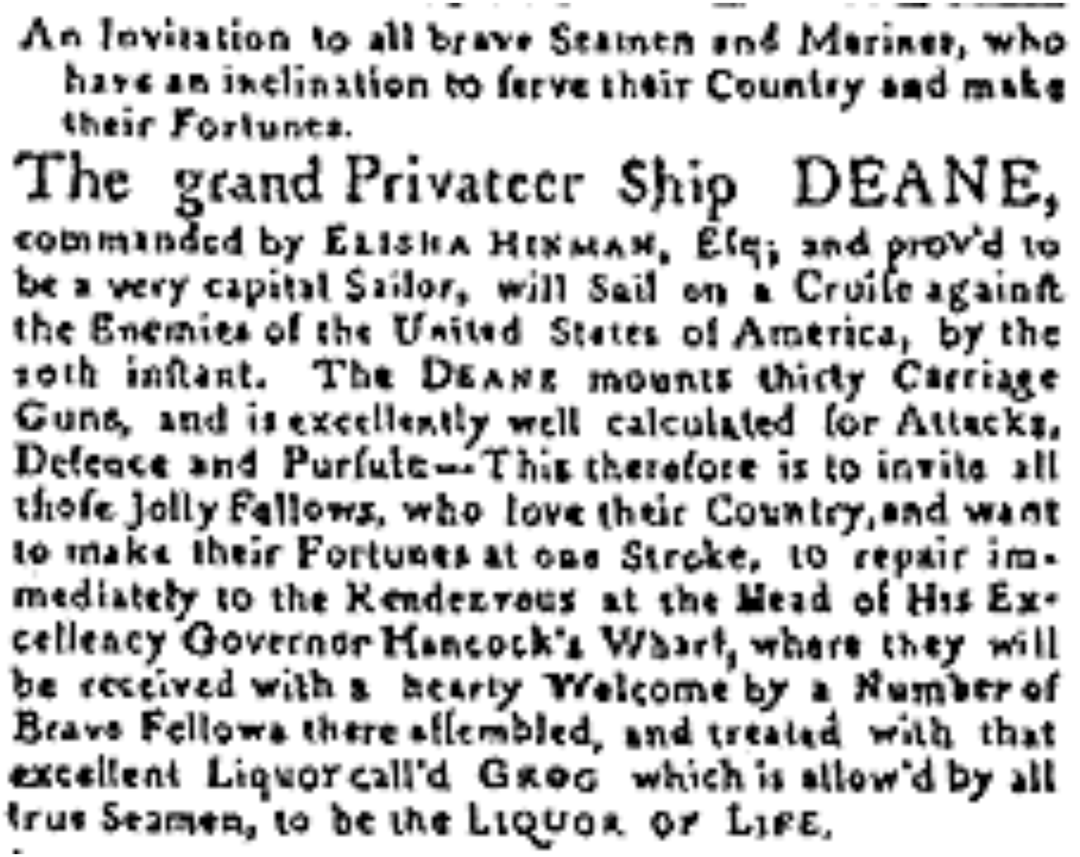

Two local men held captive on The Jersey were Obadiah Slade and Theophilus Luther. There were four others taken from a Swansea farm, but their names and their fates remain unknown.

Joseph Brown, a young seaman, a native of Swansea, was probably captured in a privateer in 1780. No doubt he was imprisoned and died in The Jersey.

Prison Ships

Some 800 vessels were commissioned as privateers, privately-owned vessels, credited with capturing or destroying about 600 British ships. Unfortunately, many privateer prisoners ended up on prison ships.

An Invitation to all brave Seamen and Marines, who have an inclination to ſerve their Country and make their Fortunes.

The grand Privateer Ship DEANE, commanded by ELISHA HINMAN, Eſq; and prov'd to be a very capital Sailor, will Sail on a Cruiſe againſt the Enemies of the United States of America, by the 20th inſtant. The DEANE mounts thirty Carriage Guns, and is excellently well calculated for Attacks, Defence and Purſuit.—This therefore is to invite all thoſe jolly Fellows, who love their Country, and want to make their Fortunes at one Stroke, to repair immediately to the Rendezvous at the Head of His Excellency Governor Hancock's Wharf, where they will be received with a hearty Welcome by a Number of Brave Fellows there aſſembled, and treated with that excellent Liquor call'd GROG which is allow'd by all true Seamen, to be the LIQUOR OF LIFE.
